Instructions

1. Read the Parents Speak Out handout entitled Partnering with Families on Embedded Interventions. Recall the parents' comments regarding communication with teachers. Parents often struggle to find ways to effectively communicate ideas about embedded interventions with their child's teachers and early intervention providers. Now watch a video clip, Using Video for REALLY Watching, in which a physical therapist demonstrates the use of video as an effective tool to improve communication.
2. Write down three things you could do to learn more from families about their views on embedded interventions and to engage families in regular communication about embedded interventions to meet the needs of their children.
